A DULL DAY ON 'CHANGE.

WALL STREET, WEDNESDAY, May 21—6 P. M. On 'Change to-day cotton was in better demand and, while lots on the "spot" ruled about steady, "Intures" were %c. a 3-16c. per lb. dearer. Flour was in fair demand and firm. Wheat was rather easier, while corn was a shade firmer. THE FOREIGN MARKET.

The advices from London were encouraging, masmuch as they showed little or no change in the prices previously quoted. Consols were steady at 93% a 93%, while new fives advanced to 89% Erie was quoted at 48% a 49, a slight falling off, and the new French loan improved 14 per cent, being quoted 34 per cent premium. The bonds of 1867 advanced to 94 and ten-forties to 89%. No change is reported in the bank rate, but the rate of discount for three months' bills in open market is % below that of the bank. The builion withdrawn to-day amounted to £9,000. Rentes. 54.30. Advices from Berlin are to the effect that the market is easy and unperturbed by any of the receding influences of the Austrian panic. In explanation of the reasons which have induced the Bank of England to raise its rate of discount an planation of the reasons which have induced the Bank of England to raise its rate of discount an English financial writer says:—

There were several causes which co-operated to make a higher rate indispensable; and these were of both a regular and a special nature. Among the regular causes were the drains which at this season of the year carry off large quantities of specie to Scotland and Ireland. The peculiar conditions of the agricultural interests in the sister kingdoms render the demand for gold less constant throughout the year, throwing the principal strain upon the Spring and Autumn. In addition to these foreseen and invariable demands, there are just now a considerable number of extraordinary calls for bullion and specie for different parts of the Continent. The largest of these—which are also, of course, more or less anticipated and provided for—have their origin at the German mint, which is at the present moment engaged in turning out the new coinage, recently adopted by the Berlin Parliament. The only wonder is that, under such an unprecedented demand for English gold, the directors have been able to keep down the rate for upwards of six weeks.

In elucidation of this theory we learn from the London Economist that France, while paying off large amounts of indemnity money, is steadily accumulating gold and sliver. France, by shrewd financial management, has caused London to feel largely the effects of the transfer of gold to Germany, and placed the Bank of England at the mercy of Bismarck and the German Treasury.

THE MONEY MARKET.

Exchange was a trifle weaker in consequence of the decline in gold, also as a result of the cheering advices from abroad. Money was likewise easier, the rate of interest ranging from 4 to 7 per cent, but the bulk of transactions were at 5 a 6 per sent. Prime commercial paper found ready sale at fa 9 per cent discount. The supply of currency is abundant, and the prospects of its continuance are anchanged. GOLD 117% A 117%.

Gold was lower, being in direct and inverse vatio to the changes in our securities in the foreign market. Rumor has it that there is a large short interest in the market, but the lending rates for tash gold are not significant of any unusual prommence of speculation on either side of the account. Soid opened at 117%, touched 117% in a few transactions, declined to 117%, and left off at 117% a 117%. The fluctuations of gold at the Board were

STOCKS DULL AND INACTIVE.

It was the dullest day in six or seven months, the stagnation prevailing in the absence of a leader being painfully apparent to the luckless and impatient operators looking for an active movement in either direction. The wider movement and the more active dealings were in Pacific Mail, which opened at 45%, touched 46, declined to 44% and left off at 45%. The general market opened steady at last night's improvement, but failed to retain it, the excess of dulness being followed by a slow decline, notwithstanding the otherwise favorable conditions of the market-among them easier money and a further diminution of the in fluences of the loreign market. Outside of Pacific Mail the changes in prices ranged from 1/2 to 3/2 per cent, the average being ½ per cent in favor of the bears. The feeling of the market tended to this side of speculation, but business was too limited to furnish a real test of the strength of the contending elements. Eric declined in sympathy with the London quotation, and in precisely the same proportion as Pacific Mail. Lackawanna was exceptionably strong, and advanced to 103%, a move ment which foreshadows another dividend.

COMMERCIAL REPORT.

Cotton More Active; Receipts at the Ports, 6,985 Bales-Flour Firm-Wheat Easy - Corn Firmer-Oats Steady -Pork and Lard Easier-Groceries Quiet-Petroleum Steadier-Spirits Turpentine and Rosin Easter-Whiskey Higher.

WEDNESDAY, May 21-6 P. M. Business in the wholesale marts continued rather slow, notwithstanding the easy money market-and the demand for most kinds of merchandise was moderate. There was less irregularity in the cotton market, but there was even more at the Produce Exchange than there was yesterday. Flour was steady, but wheat was irregular, the near approach of canal receipts tending to check the demand for lots on the spot as well as to arrive. There were some purchases of lots to arrive on the basis of lower prices. Corn was fairly active and firmer for both mixed and yellow, new and old. Oats were without decided change. The upward movement in whiskey continued, and all the sales were at an advance. Pork and lard were dull, heavy and lower—the market leaving off nominal. Freights and charters were still firm, and extreme rates were demanded. Groceries remained quiet, and exhibited no essential change in values. Petroleum was also quiet, but the market to-day exhibited a steadler tone. Spirits of turpentine was much more active, but at a shade easier figures. Rosin was still dull and weak

Russets are about the only good lots left. We quote:-Selected choice Winter, $4 a $4 20 per bbl.; Western New York mixed lots, $3 50 a $4 per do.; river mixed lots, REAL ESTATE MATTERS.

Relic of the Harsen Estate-The Penalty of Bidding on Property and Re-fusing to Abide by the Terms-The Great East Side Sale To-Day-Large Suburban Sale.

Only one sale took place on 'Change yesterday, which consisted of seven lots belonging to the Harsen estate, sold on the 24th of April to Eugene Beebe, a real estate broker, for $35,250, which, day these same lots, situated on the north side of Seventieth street, 100 feet east of Eleventh avenue, were resold by Messrs. Muller, Wilkins & Co. to Mr. E. Van Valkenburg for $33,300, leaving a deficit of $1,950, which Mr. Beebe will be called upon to make up, according to the original terms of the sale, besides some expenses incurred by readvertising, auctioneers' fees, &c. The other sales advertised to take place were postponed.

The exciting topic of to-day is the extensive sale of east side property, to be held at noon on Change, by Messrs. A. J. Bleecker, Son & Co., consisting of 101 lots, located on the north side of Seventy-first street, north and south side of Seventysecond street, between avenues A and B, south and avenue B, water fronts, under direction of Messrs. Henry Clausen, Jr., and Adolph Levinger, and avenue B, water fronts, under direction of Messrs. Henry Clausen, Jr., and Adolph Levinger, trustees. The saie is announced as absolute and without reserve, and the terms, forty per cent cash and sixty per cent bond and mortgage.

Just at this moment, when the first large parcel of east side property comes into the market, the bill establishing the Eastern Boulevard, the only good drive on Manhattan Island east of Fifth avenue, becomes a law, the Governor having signed the act on the 20th inst., which tends to enhance this land very materially. Of the water front it is useless to add any other than favorable comments; the rapid march of commercial progress will soon absorb every inch of ground on the East River, which the Hell Gate improvements are also hastening. The entire property is known as part of "Jones" Wood," and there is no one in New York who is not well acquainted with this classic retreat, where many a brilliant file champetre and Summer night's festival robbed the attendant of a night's rest. We can therefore predict for this sale a brilliant success, and the trustees of the estate are to be commended upon their determination of bringing this valuable land into the market and by its disposal establishing the proper values. Mr. Jeremiah Johnson, Jr., sold yesterday on the premises the lease for six years of two lots south side of Thirty-nint street, between Broadway and Sixth avenue, to J. H. Stansbury, for $2,000; rent $1,600 per annum.

Mr. John McClave sold at private sale yesterday

$1,600 per annum.

Mr. John McCiave sold at private sale yesterday two lots, 25x100, en the northeast corner of Boulevard and Eighty-first street, and one lot, 25x100, 100 jeet east of the same on Eighty-first street, for $43,000; also four lots between Seventh and Eighth avenues, on the north side of 131st street, with the four adjoining lots south side of 132d street, for $24,000.

The sale at Hempstead, L. L., of property belonging to Andrew M. Bennet was attended by the largest number of people ever gathered at an auction sale. Sixteen cars, filled to the utmost capacity, left Hunter's Point over the new Garden City Railroad. On arrival at Hempstead hundreds of villagers flocked to the ground. The sale was commenced at half-past one and continued until every lot of the entire property, excepting the front point, had been disposed of to actual purchasers. Ninety lots were sold for $31,210

The Assembling of the Detachments After the Battle-How the Victors Were Congratulated-Swearing In the New Officials-The Old and the New. Almost as soon as the Mayor's office was opene esterday morning the crowd of low-priced politicians and hungry hunters after morsels of politi-cal pap began to swarm in, and with only slight intervals of quiet, the offices were crowded all day. By noon there was present one of the noblest armies of patriots ever assembled, and there was joy in the camp when, a few minutes later, several joy in the camp when, a few minutes later, several of the newly appointed Commissioners appeared. Then there was a joyous burst of excitement, and every gentleman who happened to have a previous acquaintance with any of the new Commissioners was worried to death for introductions to the coming regime of officers. It was such a benign blessing to be able to shake the head of a benyolent man who might for might hand of a benevolent man who might (or might not) have a position or two to give away in the

IT WAS POSITIVELY AWPUL to see the way some men clung to the Commissioners after being introduced.

Police Commissioners Gardiner, Duryea and Russell qualified early in the day, and were congratulated upon their success by five or six hundred "friends," of whom they probably knew personally half a dozen each. But then, "you know," it is the correct thing to fawn upon a new official when he is an official, no a new official when he is an official, no matter how hard one may have worked to defeat that official when he was only a candidate. Careashim, coax him, cling to him and tell him how earnestly you hoped for his success and how anxious you were lest he might be defeated, and you make an awful impression on him—in a horn. Take, for example, General Duryea, who has been instinctively a soldier and not a politician. He never held a civil office in his life before, and yet his hand was clasped by about a thousand men yesterday who are clasped by about a thousand men yesterday who are

and who didn't care a cent about him a week ago.
Such is success. Then, there was Hugh Gardiner.
Of course he is a politician, and one of the smartest of them, and he came in for an extra share, and his right arm was doing duty all day as a town-pump handle. One man commenced to talk "at' him near the desk of the Mayor's private secretary, and talked him clear around the large office. He never "tumbled" to himself once, atthough the Commissioner kept on moving away from him. Of course he was not proud, and thought any place that was good enough for the Commissioner to stand on was good enough for him also, and he kept "right close." Commissioner Russell, fortunately for himself, did not happen to become so well known to the bystanders, and was therefore not buzzed to death. Commissioners Laimbeer, of the Department of Charittes and Correction, and Moulton, of the Tax Commission, were present also and were warmly admired, and took it in

Then there was an army of newly confirmed City Marshals who were waiting to be sworn in and receive their warrants, and Colonel Jim Kerrigan was about also. It was not a little peculiar to think that the Colonel and General Duryea, both of whom were present in the ante-room at one time, were years ago leading figures in the famous "Dead Rabbit" riots, the one leading one of the riotous factions and the other commanding the troops called out to repress the malcontents.

ATTEMPTED MURDER IN BRIDGEPORT.

About twelve o'clock last night an affray oc-curred in Sullivan's saloon, on Main street, between two young men named John H. Leverty and James Dinon, in which the latter received two pistol shots in the head and escaped death only by a cause of the affray. Dinon was passing up the street in company with several others and stopped at Sullivan's saloon, where there was a crowd collected. Leverty was present and had been drinking, but was not intoxicated at the time, On seeing Dinon enter the saloon Leverty pulled out a revolver and fired twice at him, at short range, and taking deliberate aim. The first shot passed through the fieshy part of Dinon's right cheek, and the second strikeye, passed over the eyebrow and came out at the right temple without penetrating the skull.

Leverty immediately ran, but was hunted up by the police in less than an hour and locked up. Dinon's wounds were dressed, and to-day (Wednesday) he is about, and appeared in Court thismorning.

Leverty was found hiding in a nencoop in a back yard, with his revolver in his hand, and owned up to the shooting, saying that he intended to kill Dinon and hoped he had. He was brought before Judge Thompson on a charge of assault with intent to kill, and manifested the utmost indifference. When Dinon appeared in Court Leverty halled him with, "Hello, you look sick," which created a laugh at the wounded man's expense.

Leverty was held in $500 bail, which, considering that the charge involves a penalty of States prison for a number of years, is considered very low, and almost equivalent to allowing him to go free. It is thought that the bail should have been much stronger, although the City Attorney only required that amount. Leverty is a good-looking young fellow about twenty-three or twenty-four years of age, and is brother of the present Street Commissioner of Bridgeport. He is American by birth, but of Irish descent, and is from a respectable family. Dinon is an ex-policeman, and is rather a low character. Up to noon to-day Leverty had been unable to procure bonds, and it is understood that his family, although abundantly able to do so, reuse to furnish the requisite amount. The affair creates considerable excitement.
